

JAFFE LEASING AND LENDING

APPLICATION FOR: separate credit; joint credit with spouse; joint credit with non-spouse; (name)

INSTRUCTIONS: Regardless of your marital status, you may apply for credit in your name alone; however, if you are married, not separated, and a resident of California or other community property state, we may request information about your spouse even if s/he is not a co-applicant. We may also make inquiries to third parties, including reporting agencies, about a non-applicant spouse. For married applicants, all income, and assets and liabilities, will be presumed to be community property unless otherwise indicated. If this is a joint application, both spouses must sign.

If you are applying for credit with a person other than a spouse, each applicant must complete a separate statement and sign where indicated.
